Press Release

Young Danish Photography '19

Opening Friday 1.st November 5 -7

November 1, Fotografisk Center opens the 19th edition of Young Danish Photography '19, which this year was made in collaboration with guest curator Anna Krogh, director of Art At Work. Every year, Young Danish Photography gives a snippet of what is happening in Danish art photography right now, and we are proud to present a selection that is as strong as it is diverse.

For this year's theme "passage", six photo artists were selected, each offering a unique perspective on both the theme and the photographic medium respectively, they are Alexander Arnild Peitersen, Emilie Lundstrøm, Jeppe Lange, Louise Haugaard Jørgensen, Søren Lilholt and Rosalina Kruse Serup. The common thread between their diverse artist expression is an interest in the materiality of photography and its ability to represent, explore or problematize the understanding of the passage of time in the image.

For some of the artists it means an investigative gaze approaching that of the anthropologist, for others it is an opportunity to work phenomenologically with the photographic material. Some works are easy to recognise as photography, while others experimentally engage with what the medium can be and do. There are both conceptual approaches and immersion in the material - and works that embrace both at once. There are powerful and singular expressions that are more sharply contrasted in each other's company, precisely because of their differences, while the overall theme is never far away in any of them.

A catalogue is published with the exhibition with a text by Anna Krogh, in addition, there is also educational material, which can be downloaded from our website. Arranged also, in collaboration with DJ: Fotograferne, a FotoForum discussion among the artists, moderated by Anna Krogh. Furthermore, a series of portrait videos and related long-form podcasts are produced with interviews, based on each of the exhibited artists individual practice and projects - both can be viewed / heard online.
